A NOTE FROM OUR PASTOR

It is a great honor to join you today as the Pastor of Saint Patrick Church. One hundred years ago on June 11, 1922, this very church was dedicated, and while much has changed in the century since that day, the devotion and faith of the people of this Catholic community remain as steadfast as they were back on day one.

As we recognize one hundred years of Catholic life in this church, we also celebrate the opening of a brand new addition to the building. It is a space that offers such promise and will help this parish to follow the example of Jesus and continue to serve the needs of the church and the surrounding community in our modern world.

While there are many to thank today, such appreciation must go to Monsignor Thomas J. Barry, whose drive and dedication were paramount in making this day possible. After many years of dreams and proposals to enhance the church structure, it was not until Monsignor Barry's years of dedicated work as Pastor and leadership with this project that such desires and efforts were able to come to fruition and become a truly impressive reality.

On this day of great celebration for Saint Patrick Church, we thank him. We thank all the clergy, parishioners, and benefactors who have made this parish into a steadfast home of charity, a place of faith, and a proud member of the Farmington community. And we thank you for joining us on this truly wonderful and blessed occasion.

HISTORY OF ST.

After some years of being served by the priests of Bristol and Plainville, the Roman Catholics of Farmington, under the care of Bishop John J. Nilan and their first resident pastor Rev. M. Ernest Wilson, came together to build their own church, which was formally dedicated on Sunday, June 11, 1922.

Over the decades that followed, the community would have the leadership of Father Henry Cassidy, Father James Barrett, Father William Kilcoyne, Father Austin Dignam, Father Paul Dignam, and Father Charles Kane. These men, who served the parish as administrators and pastors, worked to cultivate new ministries and apostolates to the surrounding community.

In 1951, Father John Kelly was named as pastor. He became an important civic figure while also continuing the growth of the parish. Following Father Kelly was Father James Conefrey, who in 1975 began the process of renovating the parish plant. He was followed by Father Thomas Quinn, Father James Pilon, and Father Mark Flynn, who all continued to strengthen the parish with enhancements to liturgy, pastoral ministry, social outreach, religious education, and other critical aspects of the church and its mission.

Then in 2011, Monsignor Thomas Barry was named pastor of the parish. Focused on the youth and building up the community, he also began dedicating great effort to the idea of building a new addition to the church, a project that had been in the minds of the parish for many years. Fully behind the initiative even in the face of challenges, Monsignor Barry and the whole Saint Patrick community were able to successfully turn that dream into a reality.

As the final touches of the new addition were being completed, Monsignor Barry was able to retire, with Father Matthew Gworek beginning as pastor at the beginning of 2022.

NEW TO THE

After many years of careful thought, prayer, and study, the new addition was designed to be a space in which the members of Saint Patrick Church could meet as a community, grow in faith, and appreciate the beauty of our history, our Catholic tradition, and our loving God. It's our pleasure, therefore, to highlight here some of the new elements and features of the addition.
